

EMPORIS AT A GLANCE

Emporis is a leading database based in Germany that provides and makes global building information universally accessible to users. For over a decade they have helped companies, organizations and individuals stay informed about structures being built around the world. Emporis collects data on buildings of high public and economic value and connects them with involved companies.

Emporis documents the life cycle stages of a building from planned, under construction, to existing. The database features different construction types (high-rises, halls, stadiums, etc) and usages (residential, education, parking, etc). Emporis has defined data standards relating to building terminology. Data is collected from data researchers, an editorial community and the public audience, as well as from real estate and architecture companies.

SKYSCRAPER AWARD

The Emporis Skyscraper Award is the only prize for high-rise buildings awarded annually and on a global basis. Nominees and winners are chosen by Emporis editors, who are architecture experts from all over the world. Since 2000, the award has been given to recognize excellence in both aesthetic and functional design. Previous winners include the Mode Gakuen Cocoon Tower in Tokyo (2008), Aqua in Chicago (2009) and Hotel Porta Fira in Barcelona (2010).
