Facts

- Elysian Hotel will incorporate residential units that can be added into the list of hotel suites available when residents are out of town.
- The plans for this project have changed a few times: originally designed for 153 units in a 502' building, it was later doubled in size with a height increase to 770' before a final reduction.
- The building will have two residential units per floor, with 10 to 12 foot ceilings and private terraces.
- The tower will incorporate a tuned liquid damper at the top to counteract the effects of wind on the slender structure.
- The building was approved by the city council on Monday June 13, 2005.
- In 1972 the 14-story Restaurant Building was proposed on this site, with a separate restaurant planned for each floor.
